Astrophil and Stella is a sonnet sequence by Sir Philip Sidney, first published in 1591. The sequence tells the story of the poet's unrequited love for Stella, a married woman. The sonnets are some of the most beautiful and passionate in the English language, and they have been praised by critics for their wit, lyricism, and emotional depth.

The sonnets are divided into two parts. The first part, "The Eclogues," consists of 19 sonnets that describe the poet's initial meeting with Stella and his subsequent falling in love with her. The second part, "The Songs," consists of 61 sonnets that explore the poet's unrequited love for Stella in more detail. The sonnets are full of vivid imagery, passionate language, and emotional intensity.

Astrophil and Stella is considered to be one of the greatest works of Renaissance love poetry. The sonnets are a testament to Sidney's skill as a poet and to his deep understanding of the human heart. They are a must-read for anyone interested in love poetry or Renaissance literature.
