

Disc Golf: The Day Everything Changed

On a cool and overcast day in April 1974, a group of friends gathered at the Oak Grove Park in Pasadena, California, to play a new game they had invented. They called it "disc golf," and it was a simple yet brilliant combination of golf and frisbee.

The friends had been playing frisbee for years, but they were looking for a more challenging game. They came up with the idea of using frisbees to play golf, and they quickly realized that they had a hit on their hands.
