What is Fantasy Football?

Fantasy football is a game in which you create a team of real-life football players and compete against other teams. You score points based on the performance of your players in real games. The team with the most points at the end of the season wins.

How to Play Fantasy Football

To play fantasy football, you'll need to join a league. There are many different types of leagues, so you can find one that fits your interests and skill level. Once you've joined a league, you'll need to draft your team. This is the process of selecting the players who will be on your team for the season.

Once you've drafted your team, you'll need to manage your lineup. This means setting your players' positions and deciding who will play each week. You'll also need to make roster moves throughout the season, such as adding and dropping players.

The goal of fantasy football is to score more points than your opponents. You can do this by selecting the right players, managing your lineup effectively, and making smart roster moves. If you can do all of these things, you'll be well on your way to dominating your league.
