Anya was born and raised in Bosnia and Herzegovina, a country that was torn apart by war in the 1990s. She witnessed firsthand the horrors of war, including the death of her father and the destruction of her home. After the war, Anya fled to Canada, where she struggled to rebuild her life. She was haunted by nightmares and flashbacks, and she felt lost and alone.

But Anya was determined to heal and rebuild her life. She sought out therapy, and she began to write about her experiences. Writing became a way for her to process her trauma and to make sense of the senseless violence she had witnessed.

Over time, Anya began to heal. She found hope and joy in the beauty of nature, in the kindness of strangers, and in the love of her family and friends. She also found solace in her faith, and she began to see the world with new eyes.
