An excerpt from Remaking Achilles:

"Achilles was born in a small village in Angola. He was a happy child, with a loving family and friends. But his life changed forever when the civil war broke out. He was forced to join the army, and he quickly saw the horrors of war. He saw his friends and family killed, and he was forced to kill others. The war left him traumatized, with PTSD. He returned home a changed man, and he struggled to reintegrate into society. He was haunted by nightmares, and he was unable to hold a job. He felt lost and alone.

One day, Achilles met a woman named Maria. She was a social worker who helped him to deal with his PTSD. She helped him to understand that he was not alone, and that there were people who cared about him. She helped him to find a job, and she supported him as he rebuilt his life.
