WILLIAM ERNEST HENLEY

INVICTUS

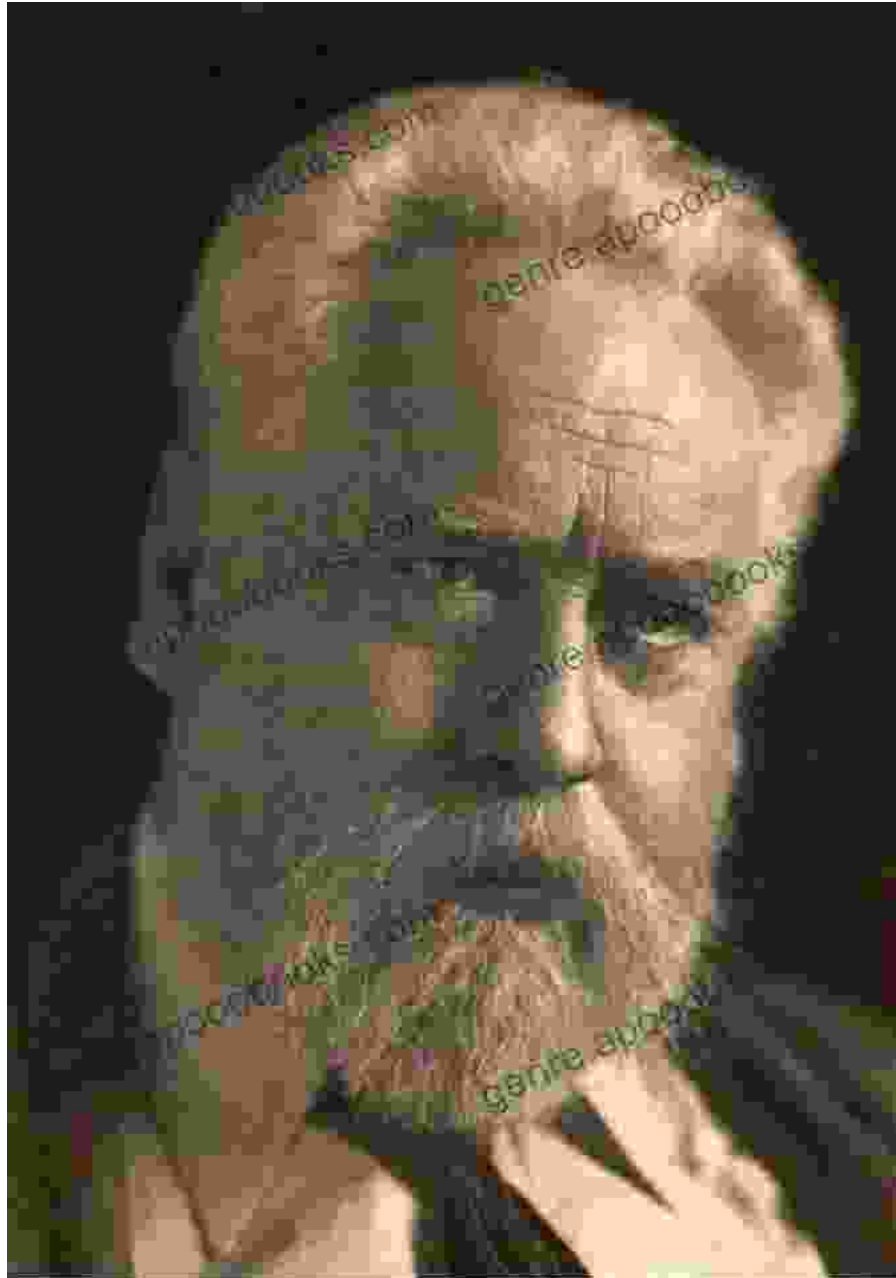

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud.
Under the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed,
Beyond this place of wrath and tears
Looms but the Horror of the shade,
And yet the menace of the years
Finds and shall find me unafraid.

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll,
I am the master of my fate,
I am the captain of my soul.

"Margaret": A Heartbreaking Tale of Love and Loss

In contrast to the fiery spirit of "Invictus," "Margaret" reveals Henley's tender and compassionate side. This moving elegy, written in memory of his beloved sister, overflows with raw emotion and vivid imagery. Through the eyes of a bereaved brother, Henley explores the depths of grief and the enduring bonds of family.
